

Facts & Figures

At UADE, a private university located in Buenos Aires, Argentina, the “learning by doing” methodology aims at connecting students with a permanent professional practice. It promotes a learning based on experience and an approach to the industries where the students will work in the future. We include professional practices, field trips, company visits, classes and workshops in labs, and intensive study abroad trips, among other options, in order to put into practice what students learn in the classrooms.
