BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA

Buenos Aires is the capital of Argentina, South America's largest Spanish-speaking country. This dynamic metropolis of almost 3 million people is home to one of every three Argentines. Buenos Aires is a vibrant, cosmopolitan city with a European flavor, whose elegant residential neighborhoods, beautiful parks, and wide boulevards are why some refer to it as the "Paris of the Americas".

The vast array of cultural activities in Buenos Aires rivals that of any other world capital. Porteños, as the residents are called, enjoy an extensive offering of theater, music, dance, and cinema as well as plenty of local soccer games and other sporting events. Buenos Aires never sleeps; there is always time to enjoy a coffee at a street café, sample Argentina's famous beef or visit a trendy nightclub and dance until dawn.

Universidad Torcuato Di Tella is located in Belgrano, one of the 48 neighborhoods that make up Buenos Aires. It is about twenty minutes from downtown, connected by subway, commuter train and several bus lines.

Argentina's geography and climate are widely varied, providing many unique travel opportunities. The northern part of the country is subtropical and home to the breathtaking Iguazú Falls. To the west is the Andes mountain range, where great skiing and hiking are only a two-hour flight from Buenos Aires. Further south, the Perito Moreno Glacier, notable because it is still advancing, and Ushuaia, the world's southernmost city, are spectacular destinations.

Iguazú Falls, Misiones.

UNIVERSIDAD TORCUATO DI TELLA

UNIVERSIDAD TORCUATO DI TELLA

Founded in 1991, the Universidad Torcuato Di Tella is a non-profit institution created on the pillars of two cornerstone organizations in Argentina: the SIAM factory (1910) and the Instituto Di Tella (1958).

SIAM was the country's largest industrial company of its time and also the first Argentine organization to have commercial presence in several Latin American countries and in Europe. Innovative and with a global vision, it produced over 250 different products, ranging from household appliances to gas pumps and cars.

The Instituto Di Tella (1958) was home of the artistic vanguard of the late 50s through the 70s. Also center of outstanding research in the social sciences, the Instituto Di Tella brought together some of Argentina's most influential intellectuals and artists.

Inheriting the entrepreneurial and innovative spirit of the SIAM company and the vanguardist essence of the Instituto Di Tella, the University's mission is to educate the country's new business, political, academic, social and artistic generations, and to produce basic and applied knowledge in an environment of pluralism, academic excellence and equal opportunity.

THADDÄUS LENZIN - UNIVERSITY OF ST. GALLEN

"Studying business at UTDT was a great experience. The professors are highly competent and I appreciated their practical approaches to rather theoretical topics. I feel that I gained great insights into the Argentine business environment. The exchange office takes excellent care of all the incoming students - this made it really easy to get started at Di Tella. And yeah, then there is Buenos Aires. Just the best place to spend your exchange!"

IRIS MAUBON - MCGILL UNIVERSITY

"Studying for a semester at Universidad Torcuato di Tella was an amazing experience. Students, professors and staff really help you feel at home from the very beginning, it is thus really easy to adapt and integrate! Overall, Buenos Aires is an incredible city that has so much to offer: a strong and beautiful culture, great people, delicious food, exciting nightlife ... All you need for an exchange semester!"

SETH AMOS - UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

"I was a bit nervous about studying at UTDT because Spanish is not my first language. However, everything in my experience was perfect. The University is easy to get to using public transportation and the bus ditelliano, the people are super nice, and the academic experience was very enriching. I left the country with many friends from all over the world and with the feeling that there is no better place to study in Buenos Aires than UTDT."

STEPHEN DYER - THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

"UTDT is inspiring and excels at preparing students not only from Argentina, but also from around the world, to be the next generation of business leaders. The campus is small but its reach is infinite. The professors at UTDT are setting the stage for how to do business in Argentina, Latin America, and developing countries. I took my major classes at UTDT and am now well prepared to enter the global workforce. If you want a top-notch education in one of the best cities in Latin America, choose UTDT. The faculty and staff are experienced, highly educated and overall leaders in their fields."

BEYOND THE CLASSROOM

UTDT offers a broad range of extracurricular activities that enrich the experience abroad and provide exchange students with the opportunity to become more integrated in the Di Tella community. Students are encouraged to become involved with the sports teams and to pursue cultural activities such as chorus and theater.

Social action groups, which organize a wide range of activities to improve the situation of the less fortunate, and interest-specific clubs and organizations are some of the other environments where exchange students can obtain a more in-depth knowledge of the Argentine culture while contributing to the community.

Through the buddy system and the language exchange program incoming students are partnered with local ones to help them ease into the city and the university life, while practicing their Spanish.

DOING BUSINESS IN ARGENTINA

The DBIA program is an intensive one-week course taught in English by UTDT Business School faculty and invited speakers. The 30 hours of class time are divided into modules that analyze diverse components of the local business environment, thus creating a comprehensive overview of how business works in Argentina. It includes company visits and cultural activities, as well as academic exchange with professors, local students and business leaders.

We offer two open editions in March and May and are happy to create custom programs that perfectly fit every school's needs.

SUMMER AND STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS

UTDT has a broad experience hosting study abroad programs that have been especially tailored for each group. These activities range from 3 weeks to 5 months and use a mix of local and international faculty. Some of the universities that have pursued tailor-made programs with us include: The George Washington University, New York University, Stanford University, University of Pennsylvania, Dartmouth College, Wake Forest University and California College of the Arts, just to name a few. Our International Programs Office assists with housing arrangements, travel plans, cultural excursions, orientation and every other logistical need.

CAMPUS ALCORTA

Located in the city of Buenos Aires, in the residential neighborhood of Belgrano, the University is well-connected by public transportation to this capital's most interesting sites. Our new building features classrooms equipped with state-of-the-art technology, an architecture studio with 160 drawing tables and a small cinema. The library is home to over 95000 volumes, holds an impressive newspaper archive and several valuable private collections. It is among the most important libraries in the social sciences in Latin America.
